Houston Street Reopens to Traffic

Motorists who travel Houston St. will be happy to know that Mobile Area Water & Sewer System (MAWSS) has reached a point of completion on the project allowing the road to reopen to traffic. The main thoroughfare has been closed since August while MAWSS completed a water and sewer line replacement project between Dauphin and Conti Sts. The project, originally started in April 2010, was delayed for more than a year while a legal dispute took place between MAWSS and the City of Mobile over who had responsibility for funding the street's failed storm drain. Both sides agreed to move forward this summer with the City helping to fund a portion of the new 18-inch storm drain. The estimated cost of the project is just over $900 thousand dollars.
